DETAILED ACTION

1. Applicant's response filed December 9, 2005 has been entered. No amendment to the claims has been made.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).
4. Claims 1-25 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Davis et al. '070 in view of Kawamata or Jones.

Regarding claims 1,8,16 and 21, as broadly claimed, Davis discloses a damper and isolator with which applicants are well familiar and upon which the present invention seems to be based.

Lacking is a discussion of the effective fluid mass and how this parameter may be adjusted to function as a fourth “tunable” parameter.

It is notoriously well known in the art to tune fluid mounts and dampers to damp specific vibrational frequencies by varying the respective areas of fluid chambers, the cross sectional areas of fluid passages, the areas of pistons etc. and/or the use of different fluids with different densities, or other properties, to create, change, or make use of a fluid inertia effect. This is generally taught by Kawamata in column 4 or Jones in column 7 lines 37-50. Note the discussion of the “fluid slug” throughout the specification of Jones.

The ordinary skilled worker in the art would have it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to have adjusted at least one of these well known variable parameters in the device of Davis, as taught by either Kawamata or Jones, to provide a damper which makes use of fluid inertia to isolate a specific range of vibrations.

Regarding the rest of the claims these requirements are met in view of the explanation given above, the strong similarity of the features of the instant application with the Davis patent and the teachings of the references to Kawamata or Jones and the common knowledge in the art regarding the dimensional changes to the structure that may be made to take advantage of the damping capabilities of fluids.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-25 have been considered but are not persuasive. The examiner's remarks in the previous Office Action are maintained here. Applicant's newly cited art, showing that the fluid mass within a chamber can act as a tuning mass, serves to further support that position.

Conclusion

6. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
